

Ronald M. Shapiro
Assistant Professor of Professional Practice
Finance & Economics Department
Rutgers Business School

Ronald M. Shapiro is Assistant Professor of Professional Practice, Finance & Economics Department at Rutgers Business School. He teaches real estate finance, investments and financial management courses on the Newark and New Brunswick campuses.

Prior to Rutgers Business School, Ron was Senior Vice President with ConnectOne Bank. He also served in executive management positions at Prudential Financial, Wells Fargo and Spencer Savings Bank.

Mr. Shapiro received his MBA degree in Finance and Accounting from Columbia University's Graduate School of Business and his undergraduate degree in Economics from SUNY at Stony Brook.

He is a CPA and former Adjunct Professor at Monmouth University's Kislak Real Estate Institute and New York University's School of Continuing Education. He is a member of Investors Bank Advisory Board. He is a member of the Board of Trustees of the Edison Affordable Housing Corporation. He is a columnist for Mid-Atlantic Real Estate Journal.

Mr. Shapiro creates and produces real estate conferences and seminars for various companies and non-profit organizations. He is a frequent speaker and moderator at various real estate industry conferences and is a Regional Planning Committee Member of the NJ Mortgage Bankers Association.